[JD] Raters

Basic requirements

- BS in Computer Science/Information Technologies or equivalent industry experience
- Fluency in market language and English is essential; additional language skills are an advantage
- Detail-oriented individuals with critical thinking skills who can assess technical content (text, video, image) in the programming and application development domains and be able to make judgements on the quality and relevance of that content as it relates to user queries.

Required skills

- Analytical outlook
  - Use analytical abilities and research skills to assess technical and programming content and rank/categorize its quality and relevance based on structured guidelines.
- Programming skills
  - Have a demonstrated background in or be currently employed using programming skills and languages, such as Python, Java, C++, SQL, and others, to write, rewrite or assess code in programs and applications
- Research
  - have ability to research topics in relation to technical content, learn new technologies, and find ways to improve knowledge, strong research skills are essential for this role
- Logical Thinker
  - be able to interpret guidelines and apply them in a logical manner to assess the quality and relevance of technical content
- Attention to detail
  - Have strong attention to detail to spot potential programming problems and find ways to increase company productivity
- Organization skills
  - use organization skills to manage multiple tasks at once and deliver tasks on time